THE SALT LAKE TRIBUNE

Many important Measures Are Passed and Others Expected to Go Through.

Heads of Departments Will Hereafter Be Compelled to Obey the Letter of the Law.

Washington, June 24.—Important measures extending federal regulation and control have been enacted at the first session of the Fifty-ninth congress. The railroad rate and the meat inspection bills will soon become laws and before adjournment both houses will have passed pure food bills, which, though dissimilar in terms, are both based on the same principle of federal control. It is the present intention to try and adjust these differences before adjournment.

There has been no marked division on party lines in effecting the above results, the differences being only as to ways and means rather than as to policy.

New Star in the Flag.

Besides branching off into this new field of legislative endeavor, the present session has made itself important in other ways. It has added one, and perhaps two, new stars to the union and by no doing has disposed of four territories. Great results, therefore, are expected from the removal of the denatured alcohol and if predictions are fulfilled, heat, light and power are to be supplied by alcohol, made from the refuse of the country, from sugar beets and sugar cane, from fruits and other vegetation.

By a deft turn of legislative points of view, the questions that have perplexed congress for some time regarding the Panama canal have been settled.

President Can Dig Canal.

The president may dig a lock canal as fast as he pleases. A joint resolution was agreed to, retaining canal supplies to be made under American manufacture. Congress has not dwelt with the foreign situation to any extent. An act making a much needed reorganization of the consular service was passed. Nothing was done in the Santo Domingo controversy and the legislation affecting our colonial possessions was meager and unimportant, although tariff revision for the Philippines received the attention and approval of the house and act was passed revising the tariff collected by the Philippine government. A coinage act for the islands also was passed.

Talks on the Tariff.

But congress talked about our own tariff law. It is the largest revenue source. Thousands and hundreds of thousands more than have been uttered at any other session were compiled in the Congressional Record. Not only on the floors of the two houses has the word record been heavy but the publications from committee sessions and the floor have been more numerous than at any previous session. A large number of bills were introduced in the two houses. The calendar record shows that the number has reached nearly 20,000, 500 more than were introduced during the entire three sessions of the last congress.

Before discussing the number of acts passed, it is interesting to note that with all the strenuous exertions of an appropriation committee and a new chairman—Representative Tawney, it has been impossible to hold the appropriations down.

Hearings During the Session.

One of the important features of the session has been the large amount of work which the demands of the different government departments has been received by the house appropriations committee.

The hearings according to congressional officials asking for money to run their departments and bureaus have been more exhaustive than ever before. The result has been the enactment of restraining legislation on nearly every appropriation bill which it is intended will have a beneficial effect hereafter.

In this class is undoubtedly that requiring the heads of all executive departments to answer questions in writing which they receive in equal parts to avoid deficiencies. This is to be done under penalty. The only excuse will be some unforeseen emergency and unless this can be shown the head of a department asking for a deficiency appropriation shall be summarily removed and his place filled in the future to fine and even imprisonment.

Restrictions on Clerks.

Another matter of economy is the taking away from the clerk the right to secure a transfer to another department at a higher salary until he has served three years in the position he wishes to abandon. The prompt turning into the treasury of all moneys collected by heads of departments as government revenues, another safeguard against extravagance. It was found that during the past year one department had collected revenue to the amount of $70,000 and disbursed it without authority of law.

A strict accounting is hereafter to be required from all United States court clerks. A revelation that one such clerk had received emoluments amounting to $36 in one day brought about this provision.

Raid on the Treasury.

Although there has been an effort to prevent the encroachment of what is known as the "permanent annual appropriation" this character of expense has increased during the session to the extent of nearly $5,000,000, making a total permanent annual appropriation of more than $10,000,000. Measures were introduced in which action was taken to reduce the permanent annual appropriations of the government.

Organized labor has been successful in the extent of securing the enactment of what is known as the "employers' liability bill." This enactment will make it possible for an employee to secure damages for his injury, notwithstanding his own negligence may have been in part responsible for that injury.

Hours of Work Limited.

Another bill that doubtless will become a law is that limiting the hours of continuous service of railway trainmen to fifteen consecutive hours' work, to be followed by ten hours of rest.

agitated eight-hour day bill received a favorable vote from the house from the labor committee, but too late to secure action at the hands of congress. The anti-injunction bill was postponed in committee until the next session.

One of the novel features of law making was the enactment of a measure to preserve the scenic beauty of Niagara Falls. This action was in direct response to a popular demand that the falls be not denuded of their beauty to serve the purposes of commerce.

Naval Legislation.

Enthusiasts for the "greater navy" regard the legislation of the session as initial proper ground of that arm of our fighting force. Congress authorized the construction of the "biggest battleship afloat," with the provision that before the plans are submitted or bids received or accepted the plans of the ship must be submitted to congress at its next session. This provision was fought in the house with great zeal, and was carried by a small majority.

Having at the naval academy was given a further legislative rebuke by the passage of a bill giving the secretary of the navy discretion to dismiss or otherwise punish officers at that institution.

A law was passed which will result in appropriate markings being made over the graves of Confederate veterans of the army and navy who died in northern prisons during the civil war. The wearing of the insignia of the Grand Army of the Republic or other soldier's insignia by other than members of these organizations is made a misdemeanor. The president is authorized to take the necessary steps to preserve "American antiquities" by creating government reservations in locations where such antiquities exist.

Delegate for Alaska.

Alaska was given the right to send a delegate to congress, and an act was passed to create a public improvement fund. The secretary of the interior was also authorized to allot homesteads to the natives of Alaska.

Although the ship subsidy measure did not become a law, twenty-four public acts relative to shipping and the exact procedure which must be followed by the states to secure immunity from prosecution later.

Roosevelt's $25,000.

President Roosevelt was given $25,000 to pay traveling expenses of himself and his family. The private pension legislation of the session was heavy and many hundred public acts will be signed before the end of the session.

The Jamestown Virginia Centennial is expected to be recognized by law before the session closes.

A bill introduced by Representative Sherman of New York was passed and made it unlawful hereafter to stamp the words "Government assay" on articles manufactured of gold and silver.

DR. DOUGLASS HYDE REACHES IRELAND

Queenstown, June 24.—A number of Irish doctors greeted Dr. Douglas Hyde, president of the Gaelic league, when he debarked from the liner Celtic yesterday, and presented to him addresses congratulating him on his splendid reception in the United States and especially for the honor of being received by President Roosevelt. President Hyde said he would never forget the kindness and munificence of the American people, and the Irish people owe them much gratitude. Although his mission was successful, he did not think there is any prospect of spreading the Gaelic language in the United States of America. No language would live there except the English, German, he believed, would become extinct there in the next generation.

NEW HAMBURG LINE.

Hamburg, June 24.—The Hamburg-American line intends starting in July a service between Libau and Dover and New York, in competition with the German line of vessels of the volunteer fleet which will manage this service with the sailing from Libau, Aug. 8, of the steamer Smolensk.

It is said that Russia is trying to control the emigration traffic and the new volunteer fleet line is a success this traffic no longer will go to the same extent by way of Hamburg and Bremen.

SCHOOLS ON CANAL ZONE.

Washington, June 24.—Twenty-three public schools, with an attendance of 1,128 pupils and with twenty-five teachers, have been established on the canal zone by the various municipalities under the direction of the canal zone government. Five of the six municipalities have adopted compulsory education laws, and well-attended schools are being rapidly in a country that knew nothing of free schools before the establishment of the canal zone government.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

Washington, June 24.—The annual convention of the International Steel and Copper Workers' union last night elected William Foley of Boston president and T. L. Mahan of Washington secretary-treasurer. The next convention will be held at Chicago.

ANALYSIS OF UNCLE SAM'S FOREIGN COMMERCE

Forty-Eight Per Cent of Imports Into This Country Came From Europe Last Year and 67 Per Cent of the Exports Go in That Direction.

Washington, June 24.—An analysis of the foreign commerce of the United States, contained in a bulletin issued by the department of commerce and labor, says that in the fiscal year 1905, 48 per cent of the imports into the United States were drawn from Europe, 39 per cent from North America, 14 per cent from South America, 14 per cent from Asia. Of the exports from the United States in the same year, 67 per cent went to Europe, 17 per cent to Asia, 2 per cent to Oceania and 1 per cent to Africa.

A comparison with the figures of earlier years shows a gradual decline in the share of our imports supplied by Europe and in the share which Europe takes of our exports. This regulation is due largely to the enlargement of our trade with the orient.

Imports from Europe have grown from $84,000,000 in 1895 to $41,000,000 in 1905; from North America from $14,000,000 in 1895 to $27,000,000 in 1905; from South America from $12,000,000 to $15,000,000, but the bulletin adds that in 1906 they will fall about $14,000,000 below those of 1905, chiefly on account of a reduction in the quantities of coffee and India rubber imported. From Asia the imports have grown from $78,000,000 to $165,000,000 in 1905.

Exports to Europe have grown from $68,000,000 in 1895 to $1,021,000,000 in 1905; to North America from $108,500,000 to $281,000,000; to South America from $30,000,000 to $57,000,000, and to Asia from $17,320,000 to $123,540,000.

The sections in which the exports of the United States make the least progress are within the tropics.

MORE HOPEFUL VIEW.

Foreign Merchants Expect Japan to Keep Its Promises.

Peking, June 24.—The leading commercial men are now taking a more hopeful view of the prospects for securing a share of the trade of Manchuria, and it appears that the Japanese government appears willing to fulfill its promise of an open door in that country—at least, it has shown a better disposition than the military authorities. There has been friction between the civil and military authorities concerning the policy to be pursued as to foreign trade privileges in Manchuria. The civil authorities are more liberal, and it is believed that when the military administration is withdrawn foreigners will be given greater freedom.

The newspapers urge the establishment of Chinese customs at Dalny to collect duties on goods destined for the interior, on the same basis as the arrangement with Germany at Kiaochow.

PASSED OFF QUIETLY, BUT HEADS ARE BROKEN

Sympathetic Nature Sends Grecian Behind Bars for Breaking Game Laws.

Hiza Petkaros is a Grecian. Unlike a Greek whose higher ideals consist of successfully manipulating the business end of a pick, a Grecian soul yearns for something more inspiring than building grades for a heartless railroad corporation. Sometimes these Grecians carve marble into figures that take lifelike form; others write verses which are handed down as some of the world's greatest literature, while a few have been soldiers whose names are household words and whose feats changed the entire course of the universe.

Hiza Petkaros comes from the latter stock, and while he has done nothing to warrant his wearing medals, an incident has occurred in his daily life which shows that he is a kindred soul to the heroes which pour only kind words to helpless animals. It is this loving disposition for a weaker creature that stamps Petkaros as a Grecian, and not a plain Greek.

A couple of months ago, while his Greek companions were spending the Sabbath at Petkaros' camp, lived in the same tent at Garfield to take a day's rest in the hills, there to commune with nature, the Greek called, and he was met by a fresh strength from the sweat and the sagebrush and broaden his mind on the lesson taught by mother earth in the upheaval of the surrounding mountains, all of which is as a man should do.

His wanderings brought him across a path of a Greek, and he was met by a fresh strength from the sweat and the sagebrush and broaden his mind on the lesson taught by mother earth in the upheaval of the surrounding mountains, all of which is as a man should do.

About this time "Bill" Bingley, the deputy game warden, learned of the incident, and promptly arrested Petkaros and the deer and brought them both to Salt Lake, where they were turned over to Sheriff C. D. Emery. "Bill" entered a charge of capturing and holding a game animal, which is against the rules in Game Warden John Sharp's dopebook. The hearing is booked for this afternoon, and one cannot help but wonder if it is better in the long run to fight boos on Sunday than to start a get-better acquainted-with-nature idea.

It was decided, however, that the woman should be kept in custody until Monday morning, when she will be taken to her home. Her excited condition of the police guard around her residence will be maintained for the present.

LAURITZ FARSE ACCUSED OF ATTEMPTING TO KILL ORA S. PAGE IN OGDEN CANYON.

JEALOUSY IS THE CAUSE WHILE WATCHMAN SLEEPS

ALLEGED ATTENTIONS TO ASAILANT'S WIFE THE TROUBLE.

(Special to The Herald.)

Ogden, June 24.—Lauritz Farse, a Salt Lake painter, is in the Weber county jail charged with attempting to kill Ora S. Page, a young man half his age, in Ogden canyon this afternoon. Page is held as a witness. According to Page, Farse was jealous of Page's attention to his wife. Page came to Ogden only a short time ago, and says he left Salt Lake because Farse was jealous of him. Farse lives at 825 East Tenth South street, Salt Lake.

Page's story is that when he lived in Salt Lake he occasionally called at the Farse home to see the daughter of the house, who is about 24 years old. He says that Mrs. Farse was always cordial in her treatment of him, and that when she would meet him on the street they would stop and chat awhile. There was nothing wrong about it, he said, but Farse thought there was and became exceedingly jealous.

Visits Page's Room.

Some weeks ago Page says, Farse called at his (Page's) room in Salt Lake, and waited until Page returned, and then told him his troubles to the landlady. When Page came in, he says, Farse upbraided him for his alleged attentions to his wife but before the conversation was over Page says he convinced Farse that there was nothing wrong.

In view of the trouble, however, Page says that he thought it was his duty to leave Salt Lake, so that he would no longer be a source of domestic difficulty in the Farse family. He came to Ogden and secured employment with the Southern Pacific Transfer company.

Apparently Lured to Tragedy.

He did not see Farse again until today, when he met him on the street in Ogden. Farse, he says, was continually telling him that he no longer felt toward him, and suggested that they take a little Sunday afternoon trip up Ogden canyon. Page consented, he says, and they took a bus to the Hermitage. Farse paying the fare.

When the Hermitage was reached Farse suggested that they go up to the Grand Canyon, the farthest point in the canyon, on foot. This they did. When they reached what was then a narrow trail, Farse turned off on foot path, and started to walk up the mountain side. Farse going ahead and Page following.

Hit in Head With Stone.

Page says that when they had progressed a short distance he turned his back on Farse and started to look at the scenery. Suddenly, he says, Farse struck him with a stone in the back of the head and knocked him a distance of fifty feet down the mountain side. He was stunned for a moment and when he came to he was in a clump of bushes. He looked up and saw Farse standing on the mountain side, and he saw that Farse was armed with a gun.

Dazed as he was, he ran down the footpath to the main road, where he encountered Sheriff G. A. Stebbins and Commissioner C. B. Madsen in an automobile. Seeing that he was wounded, Sheriff Stebbins stopped the automobile, took him aboard and drove to the Hermitage. Then, after hearing the story the sheriff went back, met Farse and took him to the county jail. Farse was taken to the county jail, and locked up in the county jail. Page has a cut three inches long and clear to the bone in the back of his head. His arm and shoulder were severely scratched. Sheriff Stebbins will go to the scene of the alleged crime with him in the morning and inspect the ground.

Says Page Started Trouble.

Farse would say little in the county jail tonight. He declared, however, that he charged the latter with assaulting him first. This is not believed by the officials. Farse is a man of 35 years of age, and is particularly his running away, is verified by the circumstances.

Farse is about 30 years of age and Page is 24.

No one was at home at the Farse residence, 825 East Tenth South street, last night. Neighbors say that Mrs. Farse left home about two weeks ago, and that Farse told a friend in the neighborhood that his wife had deserted him. The daughter has not been seen about the place for at least two days.

SWOOPS DOWN IN DARK OF NIGHT

Oregon Short Line Gang of Laborers Lays Tracks Across Rio Grande.

The Rio Grande Western night watchman slept early yesterday morning when the Oregon Short Line construction gang, consisting of 200 Japanese, laid a track in the darkness, on a disputed right of way along Fifth West between Fifth and Sixth North streets, where a car wheel and casting manufacturing establishment is to be erected by Rudolph Ortman of Greenwood, Va.

Not until the track was half completed did the watchman, placed there to guard against the operations of the Oregon Short Line, awaken to find that possession of the right of way had been placed by the Oregon Short Line. It was the rattling of the flat cars, loaded with ties and rails, being moved along the unbalanced track, the clink of the spike mauls and the dull thud of the ties being pulled into place that aroused him. For fully two hours a flume he had built while on watch. When he awakened the Oregon Short Line track was a reality.

The Rio Grande officials were notified as soon as possible that the track was being laid to the westward. Van Cott was called and an injunction was placed before Judge Charles W. Morse, who signed it. Sheriff C. E. Emery was given the papers to serve. Deputy Sheriff W. B. Booth served the injunction but the foreman of the construction gang ignored the service.

By this time the track was almost completed and work was not stopped until the ties were fairly ballasted. The track was filled with a large number of flat cars of right of way will be carried before the district court as soon as possible.

How Trouble Arose.

The Rio Grande Western railroad company secured a franchise last January from the council for a right of way for a double track south of the former line between Fifth and Sixth North streets. The tracks were to be used for passenger cars.

When the property, plat C, block 23, consisting of ten acres of land, was purchased by the Oregon Short Line company, the tracks, and they took a bus to the Hermitage. Farse paying the fare.

When the Hermitage was reached Farse suggested that they go up to the Grand Canyon, the farthest point in the canyon, on foot. This they did.
